‘Current aspects of travel health’ course March 2020

A single day update for health professionals will be held on 26 March in London

We are excited to announce a single day ‘current aspects of travel health course’ which will be held in central London on Thursday 26 March 2020. The course is designed as an update for health professionals already working in travel health.

This small group, interactive course is designed around the common questions to our advice line, along with latest developments from research and guidelines to ensure you are up to date with best practice.

On the programme:

- What’s new?
- Communicating risk
- Updates on malaria, vaccine and non-vaccine preventable disease
- Special risk traveller groups
- Topical emerging disease

The venue is in central London close to Euston station. The course fee is £220 and lunch will be provided.

To book a place on this course, please email: zaina.hanif@nhs.net. Please note spaces are limited and will be allocated on a first come first serve basis.

ALSO COMING SOON: Study days for those new to and developing in travel health! Watch the website for further information.
