TravelHealthPro is looking for striking and original travel images for our website

Are you a traveller with a passion for photography? Want to share your best shots and connect with a wider audience?

TravelHealthPro is looking for striking and original travel images for our website.

Interested? Here's what to do next:

- Pick photos that reflect the spirit of your favourite destinations. We're not looking for photos featuring you and friends or random strangers - choose images that capture a country's unique culture and inspire other travellers.
- Send your photos to travelhealthpro@uclh.nhs.uk.
- Include your name, the location and any other relevant information.

Photos must be your own work and should not have been shown on any other websites.

You keep copyright of your submissions at all times and will always be credited by name alongside any photos used on our website. We will not use your photos for any other purpose or pass them to another organisation or to a different website.

By submitting your photos, you are giving NaTHNaC permission to display your images on the TravelHealthPro website.
